offering, 'the cube' that could also act as signature design features in future hotels. Side tables resembling cubes equipped with integrated ipads, colourful metal cubic signage and striking pendant lights also in cubic form, are just some of the powerful elements which depict the brand's passion for technology and design.

Blacksheep Founder Tim Mutton commented: "Obic's coming to London marks the growth in the trend of affordable luxury. People are demanding more for their money and brands like Obic are answering this demand by creating unique design and hospitality experiences for their guests but at an affordable price. It's all about bringing a different concept to the market".

Cameron said: "British ambition and ingenuity has once again taken on and beaten the best in the world and I extend my congratulations to Team UK. As we compete in the global race, this Government is on the side of ambitious young people who want to work hard and get on and we will continue in our efforts to build the biggest and best apprenticeship programme."

What award?

Suna Interior Design celebrated with Mount Anvil after their Gold win for Best Interior Design at the WhatHouse? Awards. Suna Interior Design were chosen by Mount Anvil to provide the full interior specification for their development The Orchard in Clerkenwell, London. The brief was to develop specification that related to the 'creative' market that lives and works in Clerkenwell. Mount Anvil wanted The Orchard development to stand out as an alternative product to what was available in the Clerkenwell area. With the brief in mind Suna Interior Design decided to reflect the direction that interior design has been taking by using interesting materials and texture with some unique, quirky elements, which would provide areas of interest. The judges of the award said, "Mount Anvil's The Orchard stood out immediately ahead of the competition... Suna Interior Design's vision makes this development a cut above, offering the edgy, contemporary look so beloved of both the project's location and target market."

Kelly Hoppen online

Kelly Hoppen MBE launched her first e-commerce store with a self-designed interior product range this January. The luxury online store debuts on her website Kellyhoppen.com with accessories, bed linen, cushions, candles and gifts, all carrying the stamp of the multi-award winning designer's iconic neutral-yet-opulent style. As well as being able to shop by room or by item, visitors to the site will find constantly updated exclusive style tips, video teasers and how-to's, alongside insightful customer Q&As.

While Kelly has showcased her home product design skills in collaborations with select licensees over the years, Kellyhoppen.com marks the first time she has made a full collection of her work available to purchase online. Kelly commented, "I put all my heart into designing the debut collection...because the nature of my style focuses on simple, tactile, luxurious designs, we worked on the website to make it as user-friendly, inviting and inspiring as possible and I am delighted with the result."
